

BHUPENDRA
BRAHMABHATT

*Kenya Days,
Moonlit
Nights*

Kenya Days is a homage to the golden days of the East African Asian and the lifestyle in that part of the world. Thus, although the setting is Kenya, it could as well apply to the other two territories, Uganda or Tanzania, as the lifestyle then was very similar. Starting in the post-war 1940s and continuing until the mid 1970s 'Kenya Days, Moonlit Nights' tells of Shekhar Vakil's growing up, first in coastal Mombasa and then later in the capital city of Nairobi.

About the author

Bhupendra (1952-2019) grew up in Kenya, East Africa, moving to the United Kingdom during the 1970s. He lived in Pinner, Middlesex and was a member of Harrow Writers' Circle until it closed in 2019.

Bhupendra wrote for pleasure and pastime, sense of achievement. Doing something creative such as writing fiction took him to another world which could be quite enjoyable.

Of Kenya Days, Moonlit Nights Bhupendra says his favourite bits include the jungle safari chapter, the real Africa, and some of the poetry and song which hopefully will be appreciated by readers.
