

Craig Carter dreamed of becoming a space explorer, but aged 17 he failed his entry test to Mission Control. Determined to prove he was capable, Craig returned to Mission Control asking to learn how to repair spaceships. Craig was a willing student and soon was included in several space missions. His training and character soon lead him into many adventures. In foiling an assassination attempt, he makes an enemy for life.

About the author

Ilona lives in Johannesburg, South Africa with her husband. She has three grown up children, three dogs and five cats.

She has been writing since the age of thirteen and has had a number of articles published in magazines. Two recipe books and an historical book about a church have also been written by the author.

The idea for the Craig Carter series was penned at the age of seventeen, but life happened and the book was put on hold for many reasons.
