

Rebelling Like There's No Tomorrow

"Beautiful and thought provoking"
Dr Gail Bradbrook

Sue Hampton

Beautiful and thought provoking writing and poetry- both to guide and support fellow rebels and for those wondering who we are and what moves us to act. Our rebellion needs moments of exhaling and depth and Sue Hampton is an inspiring elder for those times.

Dr Gail Bradbrook, co-founder of Extinction Rebellion

Sue Hampton's essays on her experiences of dynamic climate activism are sometimes painful, but she provides those with love for all life with a clear understanding of all that is involved. Sue confronts the hard issues head on, the rage directed at us, the cruelty of the criminal justice and prison systems, and the feelings of guilt when we can do no more. But this unique collection brings joy in abundance; with short stories and poems that celebrate all that we love.

About the author

Sue Hampton is the author of more than 30 titles for children, teenagers and adults; she likes exploring different genres and styles. Her writing has been praised by two of her literary heroes, Michael Morpurgo and Susan Fletcher, and many other authors too. Sue was a primary school teacher for nineteen years. She says: "But with nine arrests at the time of writing I'm no longer booked by schools and this book, my 41st, is pretty much the sum total of my writing in 2021. At sixty-five my identity is primarily activist grandma – and I've recently decided to donate everything I earn (not a hill of beans) from all my titles to XR."
