Prologue

MADMAN: India is anticipating a war,
A true and deadly civil war.
Within a decade or two from now,
In this century not far.

The Sikh are behind the Hindus,
And the Muslims behind the Sikh.
The Christians behind the Muslims,
And the strong behind the weak.

'You convert to my religion,
Or you run or you die.'
Is the slogan of the strong,
Without explaining 'why'?

It's like recruiting to an army,
Or joining a gang by force.
Because worshipping to the Lord,
Is not that harsh of course.

In the name of religion,
Can one commit a crime?
And if one commits the crime,
Can he shake the grime?

JOKER: 'Don't talk about religion,
It's too sensitive,' they said.
'It's a source of their earning,
And source of their bread.'

'If you talk about religion,
You talk about their bread.
It's a million-dollar business,
For which they can fall to any grade.'
